- (1) Any person who possesses Child Pornography for the purpose of satisfying one's sexual curiosity (limited to those who have come to possess it voluntarily, and are clearly deemed to as such.) is punished by imprisonment for not more than 1 year or a fine of not more than 1,000,000 yen. - (2) Any person who provides Child Pornography is punished by imprisonment for not more than 3 years or a fine of not more than 3,000,000 yen. The same applies to any person who provides through telecommunication lines electronic or magnetic records falling under any of the items of paragraph 3 of Article 2 depicting the image of a Child in a form recognizable by the sense of sight or other records.

In this regard, for those who “use a child”, their lack of knowledge about the child’s age cannot be a defense unless they can establish that their lack of knowledge was not due to negligence. Article 9 of the Children Pornography Punishment Act.

[Unofficial English translation] No one who uses a Child is exempt from punishment pursuant to the provisions of Articles 5, 6, paragraph 2 through 8 of Article 7 and the preceding article on the grounds of lacking knowledge of the age of the Child. However, this does not apply in cases where there is no negligence.

b. review, screen, moderate, or detect content to identify enticement, grooming, or sextortion of a child

Not provided as an express requirement or recommendation.

However, similar to child pornography, soliciting child prostitution is a criminal conduct, and, for those who “use a child”, their lack of knowledge about the child’s age cannot be a defense unless they can establish that their lack of knowledge was not due to negligence. Articles 6(1) and 9 of the Children Pornography Punishment Act

[Unofficial English translation] Article 6(1)

- c. report child pornography, CSAM, enticement, grooming, or sextortion that they become aware of or are notified about on their systems to a law enforcement or government agency or nongovernmental organization

Not provided.

However, the Children Pornography Punishment Act directs business operators who provide telecommunication services necessary for transmission of information to unspecified persons or for the viewing of the information using the internet to cooperate with the law enforcement, take useful measures to prevent the transmission of information relating to child pornography using their operator rights or other preventive measures. Article 16-3 of the Children Pornography Punishment Act

[Unofficial English translation] Article 16-3

In the light of the fact that the damage caused by the acts such as the possession and provision of Child Pornography easily expands through the internet, and the fact that it becomes particularly difficult to recover the rights of a Child by discarding or deleting Child Pornography once it has expanded both within and outside of Japan, the business operators who provide telecommunication services (“Telecommunication Services” as defined in article 2 paragraph 3 of the Telecommunications Business Act (Act No.86 of 1984)) necessary for the transmission of information to unspecified persons or for the viewing of the information using the internet are to endeavor to cooperate with criminal investigation authorities, take useful measures to prevent the transmission of information relating to Child Pornography based on the supervisory authority of the business operators or any other measures which contribute to prevent such acts using the internet.

- d. remove or take down any child pornography, CSAM, enticement, grooming, or sextortion that they identify, become aware of, or are notified about

Same as the response to c. above.

Further, under the Act on the Limitation of Liability for Damages of Specified Telecommunications Service Providers and the Right to Demand Disclosure of Identification Information of the Senders (Act No. 137 of 2001, as amended) (the “Limitation on Provider Liability Act”), internet platform service operators who are aware of infringement of others’ rights may be subject to liabilities against the right holders. Article 3(1) of the Limitation on Provider Liability Act. Generally, in practice, such service operators would act to remove or take down when they are notified of infringement.

When any right of others is infringed by information distribution via specified telecommunications, the specified telecommunications service provider who uses specified telecommunications facilities for said specified telecommunications (hereinafter in this paragraph referred to as a "relevant service provider") shall not be liable for any loss incurred from such infringement, unless where it is technically possible to take measures for preventing such information from being transmitted to unspecified persons and such event of infringement falls under any of the following items. However, where said relevant service provider is the sender of said information infringing rights, this shall not apply.

- (i) In cases where said relevant service provider knew that the infringement of the rights of others was caused by information distribution via said specified telecommunications.
- (ii) In cases where said relevant service provider had knowledge of information distribution by said specified telecommunications, and where there is a reasonable ground to find that said relevant service provider could know the infringement of the rights of others was caused by the information distribution via said specified telecommunications.

- i. "Hashing technology" (<https://www.thorn.org/blog/hashing-detect-child-sex-abuse-imagery/>). Many Online Platforms hash and tag images and videos of child pornography or CSAM and then use hashing technology to scan content on their systems to detect the distribution of child pornography or CSAM online so it can be removed.
- ii. Artificial intelligence or machine learning tools to detect the presence of child pornography, CSAM, enticement, grooming, or sextortion.

Not provided.

N/A

3. Are Online Platforms legally required or recommended to implement any method to verify the age of a user before allowing access to an online platform?

Yes. For example, the Children Internet Introducing Service Regulation Act provides that a business operator of certain introducing services on internet has an obligation to make efforts to prevent children from using the service, and providers of services relating to electronic communications necessary for such introducing services have obligations to make efforts to prevent children from using such service such as providing software which would automatically restrict the use by children. Article 3(1)-(2) of the Children Internet Introducing Service Regulation Act.

[Unofficial English translation] Article 3

- (1) Persons involved in opposite sex introducing services on the Internet must prevent the use of said services by children in compliance with the provisions of this Act and other laws and regulations.
- (2) Persons supplying telecommunication services (as defined in Article 2(3) of the Telecommunications Business Act (Act No.86 of 1984)) required for opposite sex introducing services on the Internet (“telecommunication service providers”) must make efforts to contribute to the prevention of the use of said services by children by employing measures including, in relation to telecommunications via terminal equipment in use by children:
 - imposing automatic usage restrictions on opposite sex introducing services on the Internet (i.e., automatically selecting and restricting telecommunications; the same applies to items hereafter in this article); or
 - supplying software which imposes automatic usage restrictions on opposite sex introducing services on the Internet.

Note: The term "opposite sex introducing service on the Internet" (e.g., match-making websites) is based on the full title of the [Act in English, "Act on Regulation on Soliciting Children by Using Opposite Sex Introducing Service on Internet".]

Further, a business operator of certain introducing services on internet is required to verify that potential users of certain services are not children. Article 11 of the Children Internet Introducing Service Regulation Act

[Unofficial English translation] Article 11 – Persons involved in opposite sex introducing services must confirm in advance, pursuant to the Rules of the National Public Safety Commission, that persons seeking opposite sex relationships are not children in the following circumstances. However, this does not apply to item (ii) if the person seeking opposite sex relationships under item (i) receives confirmation of the name, age, and other personal identification details (as required under the Telecommunications Business Act (Act No.86 of 1984)) of the opposite sex introducing service provider.

- (i) In response to requests of persons seeking opposite sex relationships, transmitting information on said opposite sex relationships using the Internet for publicly viewing.
- (ii) In response to requests of other persons seeking opposite sex relationships, transmitting information on the opposite sex relationships of persons under item (i) to other persons seeking opposite sex relationships using the Internet for public viewing.
- (iii) Persons seeking opposite sex relationships receiving information on opposite sex relationships under item (ii) and using said information to contact persons under item (i) via email and other electronic means.
- (iv) Persons seeking opposite sex relationships under item (i) using email and other electronic means to contact other such persons who received information on opposite sex relationships under items (i) or (ii).

4. Are Online Platforms legally required or recommended to implement any method to obtain parental consent before a child uses the services of such Online Platforms?

Under the Children Internet Introducing Service Regulation Act, parental consent does not exempt the prohibition, i.e., it is prohibited to make the platform accessible to children regardless of parental consent. Article 6 of the Children Internet Introducing Service Regulation Act.

[Unofficial English translation] Article 6 – It is prohibited for any person to use opposite sex introducing services on the Internet to commit any of the following acts (hereafter referred to as “prohibited solicitation”).

- (i) Soliciting a child into engaging in sexual Intercourse, etc. (sexual intercourse or any conduct similar to sexual intercourse, or, with the purpose of satisfying one's sexual curiosity, touching Genital Organs, etc. (meaning genital organs, anus or nipples; the same applies hereinafter) of a Child or having a Child touch one's own genital organs; the same applies hereinafter).
- (ii) Soliciting a person (excluding a child; the same applies to item (v)) into engaging in sexual intercourse, etc. with a child.
- (iii) Soliciting a child into engaging in an opposite sex relationship with a person (excluding sexual intercourse; the same applies to item (iv)) by indicating that the child will receive remuneration.
- (iv) Soliciting a person into engaging in an opposite sex relationship with a child by indicating that the child will receive remuneration.
- (v) Beyond what is set forth in the preceding items, soliciting a child into engaging in an opposite sex relationship and soliciting a person into engaging in an opposite sex relationship with a child.

5. Are there legal remedies for children who have been victimized by online child sexual exploitation? This may include children who are victimized by the distribution of child pornography or CSAM imagery in which they are depicted, or children victimized by enticement, grooming or sextortion. If such legal remedies exist, do they include:

YES

a. The ability to stop the publication of the pornography or CSAM imagery by the Online Platform?

Yes, in the sense that, under the Limitation on Provider Liability Act, if an online platform does not take down electronic publication knowing that such publication infringes a party's right, the online platform may be liable for damages. Article 3(1) of the Limitation on Provider Liability Act

[Unofficial English translation] Article 3(1) – When any right of others is infringed by information distribution via specified telecommunications, the specified telecommunications service provider who uses specified telecommunications facilities for said specified telecommunications (hereinafter in this paragraph referred to as a “relevant service provider”) shall not be liable for any loss incurred from such infringement, unless where it is technically possible to take measures for preventing such information from being transmitted to unspecified persons and such event of infringement falls under any of the following items. However, where said relevant service provider is the sender of said information infringing rights, this shall not apply.

- (i) In cases where said relevant service provider knew that the infringement of the rights of others was caused by information distribution via said specified telecommunications.
- (ii) In cases where said relevant service provider had knowledge of information distribution by said specified telecommunications, and where there is a reasonable ground to find that said relevant service provider could know the infringement of the rights of others was caused by the information distribution via said specified telecommunications.

b. An obligation on the part of the Online Platform to take active steps to remove the pornography or other imagery from their servers?

c. An ability to get an injunction or other court order against the Online Platform to stop them from publishing the pornography or imagery?

See response to a. above.

d. A protective order or other court order that prohibits the person who posts the pornography or imagery from doing so in the future on the same or other Online Platform?

Potentially, within the regular injunctive relief mechanism, however, generally, a preventive injunction is extremely difficult to obtain.

e. the ability to seek financial damages or any sort of monetary recovery from an offender who has shared the child's image or video, either in a civil or a criminal proceeding?

Statutes do not provide specific mechanisms for these matters. Generally, victimized children who would like to seek monetary recovery or compensation, they would need to do so by claiming damages as a result of a tortious conduct.

f. the ability to seek any other forms of victim compensation/recovery/services provided for under the law and/or by a government-funded source?

See response to e. above.

g. notification to a victim when an offender is arrested for distributing child pornography or CSAM in which the child is depicted?

No specific mechanisms for notification are provided.

6. "Safety by Design" is defined as tools or processes that are built into an Online Platform to protect children by making it easier for the relevant Online Platform to detect or prevent the distribution of child pornography or CSAM.

a. Are Online Platforms legally required to incorporate “Safety by Design” into their systems?

Generally, no.

- i. If so, must these steps be taken before the launch of an Online Platform?

- ii. If so, if an Online Platform has already been in public use, when must they have incorporated “Safety by Design” measures?

- iii. For each of 6(a)(i) or (ii) above, please describe the legal requirement or recommendation.

b. Please include information about the parameters for monitoring, management, and enforcement of any legal or regulatory requirements for the Online Platform’s incorporation of “Safety by Design”?
